Choosing Melbourne's next Archbishop – How it should occur, and why this is important.

Archbishop Hart's due date to tender his resignation fell due on 16th May, due to his age. The Papal Nuncio is no doubt already looking for names of a successor, but a result may take some time. Lobbying has occurred for the laity to play a part, but how likely is this? And what are the facts describing the state of health of the Melbourne Archdiocese that awaits the successor?

Presenter Dr. Peter Wilkinson is a former Columban missionary priest who ministered in Australia and South Korea. After relinquishing his clerical ministry in 1976, he has worked in Multicultural Affairs, and lectured in Missiology at Yarra Theological Union, among other areas, and has a strong voice in reform of the Church. He has also managed his own company, being awarded in 2002 the Centenary medal for his advocacy for small business.

The PUMPHOUSE HOTEL provides a spacious and comfortable atmosphere.

Meals available from 6.00pm –7.30pm.
